Charles (Chuck) J. Wolfe, a leading expert in applying EI to the workplace will help you learn:

- To leverage your knowledge regarding your own emotional abilities;
- To use improved understanding and managing of emotions to coach and develop others; build teams; improve productivity; increase engagement, loyalty, trust, and retention;
- To assess EI in others using the MSCEIT to measure individual abilities to identify, use, understand, and manage emotions;
- To use the Emotion Roadmap to improve how you manage key relationships and challenging situations where strong emotions are present.

Why choose this workshop? Yale President Peter Salovey & colleagues discuss the history of emotional intelligence & key practical applications contributed by Chuck. This 12 minute audio is from Chuck's public radio show The Emotion Roadmap: Take the Wheel and Control How You Feel. Listening may help you decide why this workshop is one you do not want to miss!

"I have been to a number of Emotional Intelligence workshops. If you can only go to one this should be it! ... All of us who participated felt moved by the sessions and left feeling far more knowledgeable and confident in our ability to apply Emotional Intelligence to our lives!”

“The sessions are dynamic, transformational, life-changing, rigorous, and highly beneficial in the workplace and at home!”

Why learn about emotional intelligence, and why choose the MSCEIT and the workshop led by Chuck Wolfe?

Emotional Intelligence is gaining in popularity.

There is an entire Center dedicated to Emotional Intelligence at Yale University. Emotional Intelligence articles are among the most requested reprints at Harvard Business Review. Disney recently released Inside Out, a movie receiving critical acclaim, about the control center inside all of us that channels our emotions. Search the web and you will be inundated with reports, research, conferences, etc. all relating to emotional intelligence. Chuck worked at Harvard and now collaborates with Yale President Peter Salovey and Marc Brackett, Director for the Yale Center of Emotional Intelligence.

How do you separate the true new science from the repackaging of older materials?

Dan Goleman has called the work of President of Yale, Peter Salovey, and Professor Jack Mayer, the pioneers in the investigation of ability based emotional intelligence. Peter and Jack and another colleague, David Caruso, sought out Chuck Wolfe in 1999 to help them take the new information about emotional abilities and make the information useful. Peter, Jack, and David created the emotional assessment called the MSCEIT. It measures individuals’ emotional abilities. Chuck helped them create a certification program that teaches people how to explain the MSCEIT and how to use the knowledge of individual emotional abilities, such as the ability to manage emotions, to improve people’s lives. To help people to use the knowledge of their emotional abilities to improve how they handle their own and others emotions Chuck created the Emotion Roadmap.

There you will see a list of his clients which include top companies, leading educational institutions, YouTube presentations with award winning leaders, a number of his radio shows that appear on the Public Radio Exchange, and written and video recordings of customer testimonials regarding his motivational speaking, leadership coaching, consulting, and training.

MSCEIT publisher, MHS, asked Chuck to anchor the very first certification program delivered in Toronto in 2001. Chuck taught 90% of the 3 day program. Chuck and the three authors appeared on a panel at the end of the program. Chuck continues to run certification programs for the public and for intact groups at companies.

Most certification programs end with helping clients gain awareness. Chuck's Emotion Roadmap™ is considered by many to be the best process known for helping individuals actually improve their ability to manage and influence emotions.

Reuven Bar-On, another pioneer in the EI field, first asked Chuck to write about his Emotion Roadmap in a book he edited called Educating people to be emotionally intelligent. Chuck wrote two chapters in the book.

Each participant in this workshop will receive a PDF copy of the chapter "The Practice of EI Coaching in Organizations: A Hands-on Guide to Successful Outcomes". And each participant will receive a copy of his newest publication to be published in 2018 in a Professional Desk Reference for Coaches. The chapter is called "Successful Coaches Influence Emotions, Thoughts, and Behaviors."

Chuck is a member of the prestigious Consortium for Research on Emotional Intelligence in Organizations and an Advisory Board member for the International Society for Emotional Intelligence.
